A DOWN-TO-EARTH PICTURE

What goes up must come down and usually the down (demolition) takes much less time than the up (construction). In this case wrecking crews are cleaning up today at the old Arena Motors site at the south-east corner of the Pandosy Street-Queensway intersection. The property, along with the parking area immediately east, will become the site for the new Kelowna federal building, which is due to begin taking shape this spring. The change is just another in a series which is changing the appearance of Kelowna and district and making the area one of the fastest growing in Canada. (Courier photo)

Regional District Unsure On Zoning, Planning Jobs

Zoning and planning are jobs the Central Okanagan Regional District is still not sure it should handle.

For the second meeting in a row, regional district directors Wednesday argued the pros and cons of handling regional planning. The B.C. government recently requested the move, as the Central Okanagan is the last regional district in the province not handling planning.

Although directors have approved amendments to their letters patent permitting transfer of planning responsibilities from Victoria, they are worried about the cost.

George Whittaker, director for Ellison-Rutland, warned directors the regional district could be left holding the financial bag to the tune of about $13,000 per year—or 75 cents per capita.

"If the provincial government wants to drop something on us, we want the money for it," he said, explaining he is afraid the province may use the money saved for something else.

However, he was told by Harold Thwaite, representing Peachland, the regional district will be able to raise its mill rate and the province will lower its rate—a juggling of taxes to handle the expense.

The regional district would absorb the Central Okanagan Regional Planning Board, now acting as advisors to the province. The difference would be, according to regional district chairman W. C. Bennett, that local officials could "put teeth into the planning."

Jim Stuart, director for East Kelowna, said this would not be true, and mentioned the North Okanagan Regional District, where decisions of the regional planner had been reversed by the province.

Mr. Bennett said he will be present when the regional planning board here sets its annual budget, and also mentioned cost-sharing arrangements with the city. The discussion then was turned to a complex review of budget and cost-sharing arrangements.

In other planning business, the board discussed Hiram Walker, Gooderham and Worts' plan to build a $25,000,000 distillery near Winfield, the subject of a special meeting in Kelowna last week attended by Hiram Walker officials and civic and private dignitaries from around the Valley.

Mr. Bennett, who was at the meeting, said he feels the industry would be an asset to the community and said the company had satisfied all doubts earlier raised—mainly about pollution.

His sentiments were echoed by Dudley Pritchard, director for Westbank, and John McCoubrey, director for Oya where the distillery would be located. Mr. McCoubrey also reminded the board that a number of secondary industries would also be attracted.

TRAILER, BOAT TRANSPORT

A Dangerous Way To Ride

Laxity of laws governing trailer safety—chains and boat-carrying cars was one of a varied-item agenda probed by the Kelowna and District Safety Council at its regular meeting Wednesday.

"It's a wonder we don't have more accidents," said Bill Treadgold, in a general blast at hazardous practices involving precarious precautions taken by motorists in both trailer and boat transportation. "There should be some kind of check made," he told the meeting, adding that the best deterrent would be to make it a criminal offense. He advocated the inspection of both trailer chains and car-top fastened boats. "This is a safety matter," he said, and it's time the safety council "took a look."

Chairman D. M. White agreed there should be "some form of licensing." The best approach to the matter could be through the provincial safety council, and a letter will be sent.

Another hazard, the threat of carbon monoxide poisoning was the concern of Fred Alecock, senior public health inspector, who emphasized that special testing equipment was available to Kelowna residents faced with the suspicion of the gaseous danger at either fire hall or health unit. "It could happen any time," he warned, with some of the symptoms being nausea, headache, dizziness and weakened condition.

Also for the sake of safety, it was pointed out by traffic consultant Ken Preston that pedestrians are incurring both injury and fines by trying to beat amber lights at intersections. He also noted that smoother traffic flow through the city could be attained by "staggering" traffic lights. With their present synchronization, he added, cars were forced to move "a block at a time."

Interest was shown by safety council members in a defensive driving evening course being presented by school district 23 beginning Wednesday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., for four concurrent sessions. Fees are $7.50 including materials. Formats of instruction include how to avoid collisions, the art of passing and are collisions preventable? The course is sponsored by the British Columbia Safety Council, at the Kelowna Secondary School.

Chairman White has already sent in his application, describing the course as "extremely useful."

Other business conducted included notation that the first aid van was fulfilling its function, with recommendations that it could be used at hockey games. Deputy fire chief, Jack Roberts disagreed with the observation that first aid kits provided at the rink were adequate, and that the first aid van was designed to provide mobile service.

Minor discussion points were traffic light inadequacies at Burich Road, which had resulted in two accidents, and parking problem on Pandosy Street. The matter, said chairman White, was under study by the department of highways. Traffic signs had been placed on Bouchiere Road, and speed limits rectified as suggested.

$5 MILLION LAWSUIT LAUNCHED IN COMMONWEALTH GROUP CASE

VICTORIA (CP)—A $5,000,000 lawsuit was started Wednesday against Vancouver accountant A. D. Peter Stanley, court-appointed receiver-manager of five companies in the Commonwealth group.

The suit was filed in the Victoria registry of the Supreme Court of British Columbia by lawyers for Howard Alfred Macintosh.

The writ says Macintosh is acting both for himself as a shareholder of Commonwealth Acceptance Corporation, and for the company, one of the five to which Stanley was appointed receiver-manager in November by the Supreme Court.

Records of 35 companies in the Commonwealth group were seized at that time by the RCMP. Earlier, Mr. Stanley had been appointed manager of Commonwealth Trust Co. Ltd., another company in the group.

He subsequently succeeded Vancouver lawyer A. G. Duncan Crux as president of Commonwealth Trust.

Mr. Macintosh, in an earlier action in Vancouver, filed a petition seeking to have Commonwealth Acceptance Corp. declared bankrupt. This petition is due to be heard next Tuesday.

In the writ filed here Wednesday, Mr. Macintosh alleges that unlawful actions of Stanley, his servants and agents have cost the shareholders of Commonwealth Acceptance $5,000,000.

Defence Secretary Reports On Warsaw Pact's Strength

LONDON (CP)—Defence Secretary Denis Healey said today changing forces stirring within the Communist world may produce changes in Soviet policy "which would bring new dangers to world peace."

Healey said in a defence white paper that although the Soviet Union has invaded Czechoslovakia, nothing was said or done by Soviet leaders in 1968 to indicate they would make war in Western or Southern Europe for political gains.

But the Czech crisis increased the risks of war. Forces stirring within the Communist world foreshadowed more crises such as the one in Czechoslovakia.

"We cannot rule out that some crisis of this kind may present a more urgent and immediate threat to the stability of Europe as a whole than we have seen so far," he said.

Healey noted that Russian ships have increased their activities in the Mediterranean. The Soviet Union had demonstrated that "it can deploy and maintain maritime forces as far from their home base as the Indian Ocean."

U.K. CUTS, U.S.S.R. GROWS

"Furthermore, Soviet ships have frequently been seen in international waters around the United Kingdom from the Orkneys to the Shetlands and in the Irish and North seas. Soviet long-range aircraft are also regularly identified in the international air space off our coasts."

While Britain was cutting its own defence outlays, Soviet military power continued to grow, Healey said. This year the Soviet defence budget had increased by six per cent.

"In terms of percentage of the gross national product, the defence spending of the Warsaw pact countries together is nearly twice that of the European members of NATO; it is 50 per cent higher on a per capita basis."

"The Warsaw pact countries have about half a million men in their navies; nearly 3,500,000 men in their armies and paramilitary forces, and slightly over 1,000,000 men in their air forces and strategic rocket force. The weapons with which these forces are equipped span the whole range of modern technology."

Healey said North America's commitment to the defence of Western Europe remains the foundation of NATO's unity and strength.

Healey said Britain's defence budget has declined from the previous year for the first time since 1958-59.

At current prices, the defence estimates of £2,266,000,000 ($5,890,000,000) for 1969—are about £50,000,000 lower than for 1968-69. These current estimates are less than six per cent of the gross national product compared with about seven per cent in the estimates in the years up to 1965.

The document explained the economy was achieved by reducing commitments in the Far East and concentrating resources in Europe.

"The year 1968 was the first year since 1962 in which British troops were not actually fighting in a colonial or ex-colonial territory," Healey said.

Plight Of Farmer's Boy Results In Appeal For Tax Consideration

OTTAWA (CP)—The tradition of farm sons working for little pay in expectation of inheriting the family farm was cited in the Commons Wednesday as debate continued on proposed changes in estate taxes.

Robert Thompson, former Social Credit leader and now Conservative member for Red Deer, said many farmers' sons work for less than minimum wages, rewarded by the prospect of inheriting part of the farm.

He appealed, as many other opposition members have, for special exemptions in passing a farm from one generation to another.

Wednesday was the sixth day of debate on the government's estate tax measure and speeches had a repetitive tone as one Conservative after another hammered on the plight of the family farm and small business.

Opposition members say they are surprised by the volume of spontaneous mail that has come in on the estate tax issue, and several apparently felt they should put their views on record.

Some hint of future legislative plans emerged in the question period as Justice Minister John Turner was questioned on further changes in the Criminal Code.

Although the government's omnibus bill on the Criminal Code still has not been passed, Mr. Turner said he plans another "not-so-omnibus" bill covering such things as bail and wire-tapping.

Soon To Have Its Own Office

The Central Okanagan Regional District will soon have an office of its own.

At a meeting Thursday directors approved a plan to rent 2,700 square feet of office space in a building on Pandosy Street near KLO Road.

More than an hour was spent discussing various choices of office space and trying to decide how much space the regional district will need in future, whether it should rent an office or buy its own building, whether it should locate inside Kelowna or outside the city and so on.

Several locations in Kelowna, one in Rutland and one on the west side of Okanagan Lake were considered.

Directors were told the Pandosy Street office will cost about $350 per month.

Until now, the directors have been meeting in the private offices of their secretary, C. E. Sladen, a public accountant.

The Regional district has also hired its first full-time administrator. A. T. Harrison, now in Camrose, Alta., will take over the job April 1. He has had considerable experience in Alberta administering the business of other public bodies.

Mr. Harrison was hired from 45 applicants for the job.

In other business, the regional district heard from the provincial department of municipal affairs that legislation is now being prepared to make the Okanagan Water Basin Board an official entity.

The water basin board, which has had a stormy birth in the Valley, is made up of the regional districts from the Central Okanagan and Okanagan-Similkameen. The North Okanagan Regional District withdrew its membership after opposition from Vernon.

The municipal affairs department, however, indicated the legislation will be drafted to include the North Okanagan in the near future if it reverses its decision and joins the board.

Socreds Foiled Once Again On Curbs For Strip Mining

VICTORIA (CP)—The Social Credit government was foiled again Wednesday in its second attempt at getting a quick second reading of legislation designed to control mining operations and guarantee reclamation of land affected by mining activities in the province.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan and the New Democratic Party insisted, as they did Monday night, on exercising their right to debate on the principle of Bill 23.

Mr. Strachan said Mines Minister Frank Richter, in moving second reading, had attempted to dismiss the most important legislation before the House. Premier Bennett had requested Monday that debate be shortened so as to speed the bill into committee hearings.

The NDP leader said there was no question the principle of legislation was better than any in previous statutes because "we've never had any other legislation" covering such operations.

But Mr. Strachan went on to say other areas such as Kentucky and Pennsylvania controlled mining more strictly and the proposed legislation left "far too much leeway to the minister."

He was convicted before a judge and jury of attempting to obstruct justice by offering $20,000 to Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne if the latter would not oppose bail for Rivard.

Milk Shortage Prospect Under Study In Okanagan

Three production clinics have been held at NOCA Dairy in Vernon in an attempt to head off a possible summer milk shortage in the Okanagan. General manager, R. H. Cull, described the picture as serious unless producers meet the challenge facing the dairy industry. He stated that sales of milk have been increasing approximately 10 per cent without a corresponding increase in production. "A normal summer with the high tourist influx may result in a milk shortage for the area," he stated. Without increased production available, sales could be lost which could seriously affect the economy of the Kamloops-Okanagan area.

Agriculture Minister Cyril Shefford said Wednesday in Victoria he will contact federal Agriculture Minister Olson in an attempt to halt a proposed cut in freight assistance on feed grains for interior cattle feeders. Mr. Shefford made an announcement after B.C. Beef Cattle Growers' Association objected to the proposal by Canadian Livestock Feed Board. If the board's proposal is adopted, the assistance to interior feeders will be cut by $2 a ton in the Kamloops area and $4 a ton in the Cariboo area.

John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto-Broadview) asked Transport Minister Paul Hellyer in the Commons Wednesday whether he will support Judy LaMarsh for leadership of the Liberal party in Ontario. Mr. Hellyer did not reply. Miss LaMarsh, former state secretary, supported Mr. Hellyer for the Liberal leadership last year. A group of Ontario Liberals has suggested that she oppose Robert Nixon for the party leadership in the province.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Wednesday in Ottawa, it's not necessary for the government to decide now whether to invite the Commonwealth secretariat to hold the next Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in Canada.

Railway crossing accidents killed 1,418 persons in the eight years from 1960 to 1968. Transport Minister Paul Hellyer reported to the Commons Wednesday. But his figures, in a written reply to NDP Parliamentary Leader David Lewis, showed a sharp reduction in deaths last year to 120 from 186 in 1966 and 177 in 1967.

Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel, in his third action of the week aimed at preventing another "Santa Barbara tragedy," today called off the sale of offshore oil and gas leases. The sale of 27 Gulf Coast tracts that could have brought the government millions of dollars, was scheduled for next Tuesday and was the only such sale of federal offshore leases imminent. Hickel said the sale would Managing editor Robert Cummings said later the paper would continue to publish.

Pablo Sacchero and Mariano Gambier of the Provincial University of San Juan, 74 miles northwest of the city, discovered the mummies when they went to a cave to study paintings and carvings on rocks.

Dave Stupich (NDP-Nanaimo) said Wednesday he would not contest the provincial New Democratic Party leadership race because he is going to ask Robert Strachan, provincial party leader, to reconsider his retirement. "By all reports, Bob has been doing the best job he's ever done since entering the legislature in 1952," Mr. Stupich said. "I've come more and more to the conclusion that Bob could lead us to victory in the next election. I expect that election to come very soon," he added.

West Germany's determination to fight for European unity despite a French blockade appears to have weakened under President de Gaulle's pressure, but Britain is convinced it will continue to get West German co-operation, though it may be on a modest scale. The men were convicted of defrauding Prosper Oils and Mines Ltd. of $217,000 while Duncan was president of the company and Foy its solicitor. Duncan was a quarterback and punter for the B.C. Lions of the Canadian Football League in 1967 and was an alderman in Calgary from 1960 to 1965.

Court Conflict In Shaw Case

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A policeman's testimony has been barred from Clay Shaw's trial on a charge of conspiring to assassinate President John F. Kennedy.

Judge Edward A. Hagerty's ruling Wednesday brought Assistant District Attorney James Alcock up to demand that a mistrial be declared.

When overruled, Alcock served notice that he would take the legal issue to the State Supreme Court. Hagerty said the trial—in its fifth week—would proceed on schedule unless stopped by the high court.

The ruling came at the end of a four-hour hearing—with the jury out of the courtroom—on prosecution evidence involving Patrolman Aloysius Habighorst. Shaw was among those who testified.

LAWYER KEPT AWAY
The judge's ruling was based on the ground that police Capt. Louis Curle refused to let Shaw's lawyer accompany him to the bureau of identification room where he was fingerprinted.

Curle's action violated Shaw's constitutional rights, Hagerty added, because "no policeman has the right to tell an attorney he cannot be with his client at any time."

"Officer Habighorst did not forewarn Shaw of his right to remain silent," continued Hagerty. "Even if officer Habighorst did question him—and from what I've heard I seriously doubt it."

"Your honor," Alcock shouted, "Are you ruling on the credibility of Habighorst?" The judge said "no jurors are present."

"But you are passing on the credibility of a witness before the press and the world," said Alcock.

"I don't care," said Hagerty. "The whole world can hear that I do not believe officer Habighorst. I do not believe officer Habighorst."

"I demand a mistrial," Alcock puffed. "A judge's unseemly comment on evidence."

"Denied," said Hagerty.

Inquiry Into Pueblo Seizure Goes Into Fourth Week Today

CORONADO, Calif. (CP) — A naval court of inquiry into seizure of the intelligence ship Pueblo by North Korea ends its fourth week here today when more of the ship's crew testify in open court.

It is expected the inquiry will last two more weeks, after which the court, consisting of five admirals, will decide whether to take disciplinary action against any of the Pueblo's officers or men.

Five crew members were scheduled to give evidence today of the treatment they received during 11 months they were held prisoner by the North Koreans.

Then the court was scheduled to go into closed session to hear classified testimony before adjourning for a three-day weekend.

One of the Pueblo's young officers, Lieut. Timothy Harris, said in an emotional appearance before the court Wednesday, suicide was constantly on his mind while he was in captivity.

"What I wanted to do was take my life but I couldn't do it," he said, describing events between the Pueblo's capture in January, 1968, and the crew's release just before Christmas.

He said instead he killed a potted plant they gave him because of his hatred for the North Koreans.

He broke down and tears streamed down his face as he recalled the brutal treatment he said he received from the North Koreans.

Lieut. Edward Murphy Jr., the executive officer, said the crew had plans to escape and even formed an escape committee.

The committee was composed of junior officers, Murphy said, who vetoed all of the plans "because they didn't have a reasonable chance of success."

Murphy said there was no actual escape attempt.

Deputies Face Strong Stand By Dissident Berkeley Students

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Twenty sheriff's deputies arriving to supervise a picket line at the University of California campus at Berkeley were met by a barrage of rocks, bottles, fruit and stinkbombs from a crowd of 500 militant protesters.

Police charged the crowd Wednesday and the ensuing violence, described as the worst to hit the campus during a month-long demonstration for more minority studies, resulted in five injuries and 25 arrests. There were 35 windows broken.

During the day university officials announced the dismissal of one student in the first disciplinary action resulting from the current disorders. Sixty others are on interim suspension and face hearings.

Elsewhere there was relative calm in the wave of student unrest on campuses in the United States.

There were these developments:

Madison, Wis.—The University of Wisconsin faculty recommended a change in long standing policy against admitting students expelled or suspended from other state schools.

But on a 524-to-518 vote the faculty upheld the administration's denial of admission in the case of three Negroes suspended from the state university of Oshkosh after a demonstration last fall.

Chapel Hill, N.C.—The University of North Carolina warned students they will be criminally prosecuted if they attempt to seize a building on any of the school's four campuses.

Winter Strikes Hard At U.K.

LONDON (CP) — Parts of England were virtually paralysed today by an overnight snowstorm, cutting off towns and villages in the north and littering the roads with abandoned cars.

Two persons were killed near London when their car skidded in a snowdrift and a train was derailed.

London's Heathrow and Gatwick airports were closed for part of the night as snow blocked the runways.

Winds up to 63 miles an hour piled the snow into drifts.

The overnight storms followed floods, gales and blizzards that hit the south and southwest coasts.

Mountainous waves in Devon burst the seawall at Tlignmouth and flooded the town centre.

Micheners Happy Touring Guyana

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (CP) — Governor-General and Mrs. Roland Michener toured the rural areas along Guyana's Corentyne coast Wednesday and received one of the most enthusiastic welcomes so far of their six-day state visit to this South American member of the Commonwealth.

Obviously pleased with the reception, the Micheners stopped their cavalcade on several occasions and walked along the road chatting and shaking hands.

At a school in Berbice, Mr. Michener was presented with a garland of flowers by a young girl student.

The Micheners flew to the area in a twin-engine Otter of Canadian make and returned by road, crossing the Berbice River by ferry.

Today Mr. Michener will fly to Komashe and visit the Wai Wai village of Amerindians at the headquarters of the Essequibo River.

The Amerindians were the original inhabitants of this jungle region, and until recently have had little contact with the outside world.

Your Interest Could Save You Money, Give Inmates A Chance

If you earned less than $5,000 last year you didn't make enough money to keep one inmate in a federal prison.

This costly information was brought to Kelowna Wednesday by a native British Columbian who has some strong feelings about penal problems and a challenge for anyone who will listen.

John Braithwaite, director of correctional planning in Canada, has some progressive suggestions, but insists they can't work unless there is more community involvement. He puts his thought into simple terms—can Canadians continue paying for something which need not be so costly?

The 37-year-old Vancouver native was the youngest prison official in the country in 1959 when he was appointed deputy warden at the Haney Correctional Institute in the Fraser Valley. His ideas at that time for community involvement were considered radical by some people, but they worked so well he is now charged with organizing similar programs across the nation.

PROVED POINT

Mr. Braithwaite knows the problem goes much deeper than a simple dollars and cents proposition, but he used the cost to taxpayers to prove his points.

Such as Canada having more people per capita behind bars than any other nation in the western world. Such as a cost of $8.5 million to keep 2,400 men behind bars in B.C. alone for one year and $70,000,000 annually to look after inmates of federal institutions.

His statistics at times were shocking, but used only to convince people that they can help the situation themselves.

He had no trouble convincing about 50 people at the Kelowna Chamber of Commerce first dinner meeting of the year Wednesday night at the Aquatic.

Mr. Braithwaite said he was not critical of any level of government. "My job is to develop, not to damn."

He said at one time or another everyone has had his interest aroused by some aspect of crime, or correction. . . . there is sometime shock and occasionally amusement.

He said there was not a single person at the meeting who had not committed an offence at some time, although they may not have been apprehended.

"Crime in Canada is big business, in the sense of the amount of money involved."

The total cost of apprehension, incarceration, support of inmates' families and loss through theft and damage in the Okanagan in one year equals the economic impact the fruit industry has in this area, roughly $40,000,000.

He said many figures which led to this total were estimates, "but there are hard facts."

In the United Kingdom there are 59 of every 100,000 people behind bars. In the United States the figure is 200 per 100,000 and in Canada 240.

He said Canadian criminals "are not that much harder to treat," but the popular practice seems to be "place people in prison."

Mr. Braithwaite said 40 per cent of Canadian prison inmates had done time before.

"I'm not critical and don't have an overly simple solution."

He quoted Governor Macdonald of Georgia, who said what was needed was a better class of inmates.

"Citizen participation is indispensable and on the rare occasions an inmate has been allowed to contribute to a community he has fulfilled that role."

He said a survey showed that 2,000 inmates on parole made $8,000,000 and supported 2,000 dependents.

VOLUNTARY

"Social isolation can be reduced by the help of interested people," he said, adding that "you can help by providing volunteer supervisors, employment and warm friendship."

"We can't send these people out to do the rest of their time without supervision."

He suggested interested people could use the experience of the John Howard Society.

Mr. Braithwaite had no specific solutions, but challenged chamber members with a series of questions:

"Have you discussed possible ways of helping with your probation officers?"

"Can your organization help prevent children from dropping out of schools and becoming delinquents?"

"If a youngster is in court, can you offer kindness and understanding?"

TWO GROUPS

He said the government has established two agencies to help, a corrections consultation centre and a research centre.

The first, he said, would provide information to groups such as the Kelowna chamber on request. The second, obviously, was to evaluate new developments. He hoped many communities would use the two groups.

"We must develop new and exciting partnerships in the fight against crime," he said.

Mr. Braithwaite didn't suggest Canada could do without prisons, "but we can have fewer prisoners."

He said evolution in mental health and changes in public attitude toward the mentally ill proved citizens will support such undertakings.

YOURSELVES

"Don't do this to help the authorities, or even the offenders, but because it will be helpful to yourselves."

He said harm caused by crimes committed by a few people was not as bad as the harm which could be caused by everyone using the wrong methods of control and correction. If this is the case, the whole community must eventually answer for the problem situation.

Mr. Braithwaite obviously did a forceful job of getting his message across, as the question period lasted twice as long as his speech.

Dave Chapman asked Mr. Braithwaite for his views on abolition of capital punishment, except in the case of police and prison officials slayings.

Mr. Braithwaite felt strongly that the current five year experiment in abolition was the right move. He spoke from the experience of having worked with a unit for condemned men.

NOT DETERENT

He said hanging didn't console members of a family which lost someone through a violent crime and capital punishment isn't a deterrent to murder.

"The current situation is being carefully studied and there is no indication murders are rising as a result of the enlightened penalty."

In reply to a question about what is done for members of families who have someone in prison, Mr. Braithwaite said many reactions would be less emotional if there were more means to provide for such victims. He said New Zealand and the United Kingdom have pioneered such care and there is a need for improvement in Canada.

Bud Truswell, president of the Westbank chamber, asked if new methods were working in treating repeating offenders.

Mr. Braithwaite said Canada was a long way from doing away with prisons, but good programs are helping.

B.C. HAS SOME

He agreed some institutions are "pretty crummy" in appearance . . . a good program can operate in an older building, but works better, naturally in more modern surroundings, such as have been built in B.C. recently.

Inmates must first be taught responsibility and initiative, then given good programs. He said institutions must offer inmates skills they will be able to use when they leave, "not mail bag sewing."

Murderers and habitual prisoners are among the best prospects for parole because they realize if they violate their parole they can go back behind bars for 10 to 20 years.

"Most murders are committed not for profit, but by unfortunate, inadequate people."

Mr. Braithwaite said he had been telephoned in Kelowna Wednesday by a person who had been an inmate while Mr. Braithwaite was at Haney. "He said he was doing well and asked me to pass my appreciation to you tonight," for providing a community into which he could return successfully.

THEY HELP

"Inmates donate blood, help with outside fund-raising drives and are taught to fit into community life, even while they are doing time. They learn trades such as auto mechanics, carpentering and, now, computer programming."

"Tell use your needs as employers and we'll try to help."

Mr. Braithwaite said there were more people in jail in Canada than the United States not because of a better system of apprehension, but because of a lack of things such as weekend jails for liquor offenders.

"Too often magistrates and judges must look at a person and decide if he should be sent to jail or left outside, not because he wants to have the person incarcerated, but because he doesn't have sufficient resources to have him left out."

DOES SOMEONE HAVE TO BE KILLED?

Safety officials keep saying this isn't good weather for bicycle riding, but some people refuse to listen. This woman, to get around a large puddle, rode completely into the wrong lane, riding toward oncoming traffic. Perhaps someone has to be killed before the advice of police and safety officials strikes home. How about your son, or daughter, or grandmother? Or would you like to keep them with you, simply by having them stay off the streets for a few more weeks, until the weather improves? (Courier photo)

Safety Group Seeking More Beach Lifeguards

City council will shortly receive a letter from the Kelowna and District Safety Council supporting a request for three additional lifeguards for beach duty this summer as recommended by Gordon Smith, superintendent of parks and recreation.

Approval of a motion by chairman D. M. White was given at the regular meeting of the safety council Wednesday, after lengthy discussion centered mainly around adequate safety personnel for both pool and beach areas.

Terming the beach facilities as the location "where we really need lifeguard help," Mr.

Smith said a head-count last summer revealed between 700 and 900 swimmers which, even with five lifeguards in attendance, "couldn't beat all the odds" against a water fatality.

Leading up to this was discussion questioning the adequacy of current pool personnel and the difficulty of finding qualified lifeguard material. Mr. Smith told the meeting that Red Cross swimming instruction committee regulations had stipulated attendance of one lifeguard per 40 swimmers. In comparison, a letter from Jack Arnold, manager of the British Columbia Safety Council cited one lifeguard per 100 persons, with the latter figure based on swimmers in the general pool area and not directly in the water.

Chairman White conceded that 100 was a "lot of people" for one lifeguard to oversee. He cited a pool in West Vancouver where he had noted two lifeguards for what he estimated to be 580 children. It was suggested the pool regulations were only intended as a minimum standard.

He thought lifeguard patrolling areas should be more clearly defined, and was assured by Mr. Smith that this precaution had already been instituted. Most critical areas were beaches where lifeguard patrol was difficult to maintain without proper personnel. Most dangerous, particularly to children, were the "swim at own risk" locations.

Although experimental use of women lifeguards last summer proved surprisingly favorable, Mr. Smith said he did not advocate their full-time utilization, even in the face of increasing difficulties in obtaining qualified male personnel. Implementation of the beach lifeguard force, he added, would place the recreation commission in a "favorable position."

SEEN and HEARD

You're right, that is some strange weather the Central Okanagan is having. Whoever is responsible for the weather has thrown just about everything at this area during the winter—snow, rain, hail, cold and now, as the characters of the comic strip EC would say "the clouds are walking." Parts of the Valley are covered by fog for the third consecutive day, but cheer up, sunshine is forecast. Actually, Kelowna has been hard hit by the blanket of low cloud, many outlying districts have been fog-free.

The long range weather forecast for the Central Okanagan still isn't what area residents would like, but the prospects are improving. For years people have taken for granted forecasts which called for above normal temperatures and below normal precipitation. This winter the predictions and the weather have been exactly the opposite, but slightly better things appear in store—with the latest crystal ball glance by the weatherman calling for near normal temperatures and only moderate precipitation. Old Man Winter will be driven out yet.

A couple of sly digs at two major Kelowna events were made by Kelowna Chamber of Commerce president Gordon Hirtle at a chamber dinner meeting Wednesday. Referring to discussions at Monday's city council meeting, Mr. Hirtle mentioned "the Dominion Drama Festival, at our inadequate Community Theatre," and "the Regatta, if we have one this year."

A year of active progress has been predicted by Kelowna Chamber of Commerce president Gordon Hirtle. Speaking at a dinner meeting Wednesday, Mr. Hirtle told past president Bruce Whisby, "You had a good year in 1968 and we aim to continue the success this year."

Beach Patrol Group's Goal

If the Kelowna and District Safety Council is eloquent enough, it might woo the local constabulary into relinquishing its small patrol boat in the interest of safety.

A letter requesting use of the craft will be forwarded to city fathers as approved by a motion at the regular meeting of the safety group Wednesday. The idea of using the RCMP boat came on the heels of remarks by Gordon Smith, superintendent of the parks and recreation commission. The boat, he said, could go with a $500 motor already purchased, with a view to patrolling city street end-beaches.

Chairman D. M. White concurred, adding that he could see no reason why the craft could not be used for safety council patrol work when not in official RCMP duty, since its purpose was for patrolling the lake.

Lion District Governor Visits Rutland Club Today

An administrative helping hand in the form of district governor, Doug Sutherland of Kelowna, is scheduled to drop in on the Rutland Lions Club today.

One of 477 district governors who supervise the activities of more than 22,850 Lions clubs, Mr. Sutherland will confer with president Roy Tanemura and secretary Don Braund, as well as officers, directors and members of the organization on matters pertaining to Lions administration and the program of humanitarian services.

DOUG SUTHERLAND

Special mission of Lions clubs is the promotion of good government and citizenship, the development of civic, education, social and moral welfare of the community and nation, and to help create and foster a "spirit of generous consideration among the people of the world."

The slogan of the International Association of Lions Clubs is "liberty, intelligence, our nations' safety," and its motto is, "We serve."

Three Men Remanded After Court Appearance

Three men were remanded in custody today on separate criminal charges.

Karl Ziehe, Rutland, pleaded guilty to theft of gasoline early today from the Rutland Water Works, and was remanded to Monday while a pre-sentence report is prepared.

Convictions today were: Robert Kunzli, Kelowna, $75 for failing to stop at a stop sign; James Lentz, $200 and a two-month suspension of his driver's licence for driving without due care and attention; Ray Maday, Kelowna, $35 for failing to obey a traffic signal light; Ivan Dobler, Peachland, $200 for supplying liquor to minors.

Remanded in custody until Wednesday was Sandy Ricketts, charged with obstructing a police officer who was arresting his brother (who has been charged with assaulting a peace officer). He has pleaded not guilty.

Andre Legault, Kelowna, was remanded in custody to Friday and will be required to sign a surety bond after uttering threats to a local woman.

Ewert Brimacombe, Kelowna, pleaded not guilty to a charge of failing to stop at a stop sign and will appear for trial March 3.

Zack Hollitzki, Kelowna, will appear Tuesday for trial on a charge under the Motor Vehicle Act.

Now The Time For Action Regional Officials Told

Kelowna does not have a traffic problem now — but it might in five years.

This was the prediction of a traffic expert in Kelowna Thursday to speak to city council and the Central Okanagan Regional District about a proposed $10,000 traffic study.

Representing a major Canadian transportation engineering firm, the Calgary traffic expert has combined efforts with Interior Engineering Services Ltd., a local firm, to recommend the traffic survey to council.

Council originally heard a suggestion for a survey, but some people felt the survey should be done by local consultants who know the city's problems thoroughly.

A representative of Interior Engineering told the regional district Thursday that city council and the department of highways are in approval of the combination of local-outside talent for the study.

The traffic consultant said a survey in Kelowna would be "difficult" and of "very limited value," unless it were extended to cover surrounding rural areas at least as far as Rutland.

Council heard a figure of five miles radius as a recommended limit for the study.

The study, the consultant said, would look at present traffic patterns and land use, the latter of which determines traffic patterns, in an attempt to predict future patterns.

"We would develop a plan for little-used outer areas which will eventually be developed and where corridors could be set aside for building roads," he explained.

He said traffic may be running reasonably smoothly now, but that certain areas could "break down" in five years.

After telling the regional district that he had come to explain what the consultants had in mind "we're not trying to sell you anything," an Interior Engineering spokesman said, the traffic expert was reminded that the regional district has not authority over highways in its area.

Annual Mothers' March Goes 15 Per Cent Past Goal

The annual Kinsmen sponsored Mothers' March has attained success.

Residents of Kelowna and district have again generously donated to the Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundation of British Columbia.

Those residents who were missed, saying several had phoned to see how donations could be made. He said cold weather and illness forced some mothers to cancel their marching activities at the last minute.

The total receipts are $11,585 or 15 per cent more than the goal of $10,000. Campaign chairman C. G. (Bud) Meckling said the response was "far beyond our expectations" considering the cold weather experienced prior to the campaign.

Mr. Meckling said as there will be no further campaigning, those people missed and wishing to donate may by sending their contribution to the Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundation of British Columbia, Box 213, Kelowna.

Mr. Meckling was most appreciative of assistance given him and extended thanks to members of the Kelowna Kinsmen and Kinette clubs, rural head mothers, captains, honorable head mother, Mrs. Phyllis Trenwith, Marching Mothers, all news media and particularly all residents who donated so generously.

ADVOCATES COMPUTERS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Leone Prock, an associate professor at Simon Fraser University here, says technology is far in advance of education and is frequently ahead of man's ability to benefit from advances.

Prock, one of a group of 13 experts who met in Paris recently to discuss the implications of new technology, says computers could be used to ease the problem of overcrowding in schools.

The Hope-Princeton highway was bare at the lower levels with compact snow on higher levels. Identical conditions existed on the Monashee Pass and the Kelowna-Beaverdell roads.

Winter tires or chains were necessary on the Allison pass, Rogers Pass and Monashee Pass, as well as the Kelowna-Beaverdell road.

Highway 97 Bare, Good

Highway 97, in the Kelowna area was bare and good, in the department of highways road report of 7:30 a.m. today.

Identical conditions existed on the Fraser Canyon road, Cache Creek-Kamloops road, Rogers Pass and the Vernon-Lumby-Cherryville road.

Campus Lawlessness Must Be Ended

The confrontation between university administrations and protesting students in Canada reached a new climax last week when police and firemen were called in to oust students from a section of Sir George Williams University in Montreal. When it was all over millions of dollars of property damage had been done, irreplaceable records had been destroyed and some 90 students were under arrest.

Reports of events leading up to the riot do not appear to reflect any credit on the university administration. Undoubtedly mistakes were made and there was indecision and vacillation. But these things on the part of the administration are no excuse for the physical detention and abuse of the vice-principal. They were no excuse for the vandalism and arson. Such acts of violence and lawlessness have no place in a civilized country. They should certainly have no place in a university. Whatever the case the students may have had, they destroyed it through their own actions. The rioters, if found guilty, belong in jail, where any other citizen would be if found guilty of similar offences. They should be expelled from Sir George Williams and denied entrance to any other university in Canada. And, if they are residents of another country—any other country—they should be sent back home.

The Toronto Globe and Mail, commenting on the issue, said that any university incapable of maintaining law and order should be shut down.

until it can be reopened under an administration that can make it function like a university. This may be so and it may yet be necessary, but, surely, some thought must be given to the majority of students not involved in these university fracas. The Montreal university has a full-time enrolment of 5,500 while the students who occupied the computer building numbered only 150 to 200. It would be a sad commentary on university and Canadian life if over 5,000 have to pay for the actions of 200. (Still, in passing, one must wonder where were these silent 5,000 during the trouble. And where were the silent thousands during the Simon Fraser turmoil. Sometimes inactivity is not enough.)

Steps must be taken—not only at Sir George Williams but at every university in Canada—to ensure that there is no repetition of the Montreal disaster. Basic to this should be a move to strengthen the authority of university administrations and a warning that violence will not be tolerated in this country, either on campus or off it, and that student law-breakers will be as subject to the full penalties of the law as any other citizen. To this end university authorities must have full government and public support for calling on police assistance the moment violence is threatened.

And, further, university authorities have the right to expect that any non-Canadian students involved in such affairs will have their permits cancelled by the immigration department.

Mission To Latin America

(Victoria Times)

Most attention given to the preliminary report of the special Canadian mission to Latin America recently centred on the political questions it raised, specifically whether or not Canada should become a member of the Organization of American States. But the mission was equally concerned with trade and made a number of important recommendations on other subjects.

The five cabinet ministers and 25 senior government officials who made the month-long tour through nine Latin American countries found great opportunities for Canadian firms. They agreed however that it will be necessary to improve export credit financing for companies wishing to do business in the area and possibly increase government assistance for engineering and consulting firms operating there.

At the same time Canada should be seeking ways to assist Latin Americans to sell their goods here and thereby build up more credit and purchasing power. The report also suggests the federal Travel Bureau could assist Latin American countries to develop better tourist-promotion operations here, which would lend both to Latin America acquiring more dollars and building understanding through social contact.

Only three per cent of Canada's total trade is with Latin America and the report concludes this is a "disappointingly low level, particularly in view of the potential that exists and in comparison with other countries overseas and with the trade of other countries with Latin America."

The report also points out that Canada and Latin America have many common economic interests, including Argentine wheat pricing and marketing, and mining policy in Chile, Peru and Mexico. It also lists 15 specific enterprises where it believes there are special opportunities for Canadian companies in Latin America.

These are avenues that can be followed up without delay. If we proceed first to increase our trade and contacts with Latin America then some of the political problems, on which there have been differences of opinion, should fall into place more easily later.

IT HAPPENED IN CANADA

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

IN FASHION

Sir: A protest in this day and age appears fashionable, and here for the first time in my life I feel obliged to give voice to a protest and do so because in my very humble opinion, I feel the need is urgent. Bilingualism is on my mind.

We have a large majority of English-speaking people over and above any other language group in this country who have passively accepted almost as routine, accusations of prejudice and unfair treatment to the citizens in general of the province of Quebec, and passively, despite some misgivings watch the aspirations of Quebec materialize in the development of the new federal law to make the whole of Canada an equal French-English speaking country.

Does it really make any difference to us and are we being unfair if we object to this new bilingualism? We have been told by spokesmen of the federal government that it will not really have any effect on us individually but only insofar as certain federal government departments and certain judicial aspects pertaining to our courts.

No doubt this is how its application will commence, then what? Will it develop to be with the legislation of the French language across Canada that the demands in that language in business and every other walk of life, either directly or indirectly, adversely affect the everyday life of all English speaking citizen and it makes me wonder what we have done to earn this destruction.

My first thoughts were, what is there in this new bilingual law as it is being presented by our federal government that is advantageous to the English speaking majority. (I believe in percentage—approx. 14,000,000 to 6,000,000.) I fail to see any advantages—only disadvantages.

We have heard our federal government say that we should make those that speak French equally at home in all parts of Canada by having language rights equal, also it will help to eliminate discrimination against French-speaking citizens throughout Canada. All well and good, I have no quarrel with French as the official language of Quebec province neither have I any quarrel with activities of the Quebecers as it may affect their own province but must confess that—there it ends.

In my several trips across Canada on business or as a tourist, English is the language spoken and understood in all provinces from coast to coast with the exception of Quebec and a few bordering cities in New Brunswick and Ontario.

Admittedly, a knowledge of French in rural Quebec is almost essential, but, the need for knowledge of a language in Canada is preponderantly English and this necessity to know English really applies to Quebec and actually we find a far greater number of Quebecers becoming fluently bilingual as of necessity than their English-speaking compatriots who rarely have an opportunity to speak French however good they may have learned the language in school unless they go and live in Quebec and a language that is not spoken is soon forgotten.

Equal language rights in government or private business simply means that those who are located in designated bilingual districts which will include Ottawa, our capital city, will of necessity have to be proficiently bilingual to hold any administrative position, for example, in the Armed Services, the RCMP and other branches of government.

Making concessions is neighborly, but the continuous making of concessions one way is not. The Canadian government under the leadership of a previous prime minister, Mr. MacKenzie King, introduced a new Canadian Citizenship Act whereby for the first time in our history all citizens of this great country were officially and lawfully designated as Canadians.

The English-speaking Canadians comprising those of many ethnic origins encompassing all of Europe were delighted and actually Mr. MacKenzie King, himself, took out citizenship certificate no. 1 under the new act.

Unfortunately the new act lasted only a few months before it was repealed as the Quebec French refused to call themselves Canadians and insisted that they continue their individual identity as French-Canadians and this reverted the English speaking majority to again seek ethnic origin of our ancestors and be classified as English.

A very retrogressive step that we are still burdened with and as long as it remains, a permanent division of our country has been created.

Of further interest and what may really throw some light on alleged prejudice against our French speaking citizens is that during the later years of office of MacKenzie King (I don't remember the exact year) the province of Quebec introduced in their provincial law an act making it completely compulsory for all children to go to school, that were residents in that province, being the last province in Canada, by many years, to do so.

The secular school training as provided by all the other provinces, particularly, in the realm of engineering and sciences was not generally taught in Quebec where schooling was left by that province in the care of religious or organizations, so perhaps the complaint that Quebecers have not been given the same opportunities and advancement as English speaking in business.

The lack of action lays on the people of the province of Quebec—not on the English speaking majority.

In conclusion, I submit that if Quebec feels she cannot go along with Canada, let the decision be theirs and firstly, after a settlement of Quebec's secondly, the St. Lawrence River designated by treaty as international water and thirdly, a freeway by road to the Maritimes. We should lend every support their venture but, it is most doubtful that Quebec wished to renounce the blessing of Confederation, being a term used by an Atlantic province premier.

By now, some will have branded me as a reactionary, however, freedom of speech is still with us and this being the first occasion I have raised my voice in protest.

I protest because I feel the need that all who have the true welfare of our great country at heart should unite in voicing our protest through our members of parliament as opposing the new bilingual bill.

Sincerely yours,
A. SILVER

CENSURE UNINTENDED

Sir: Regarding the remarks of J. Michael Roberts in your paper of Feb. 17, it should be clearly recorded that the statements were mine and not those of the chamber of commerce. It is difficult to see how my remarks could be taken as anything like a censure (by the Chamber) of the Community Chest.

I do not advocate quilting, yet surely there must be a time limit on all campaigns and an attempt to reduce "over-lapping."

My expression may have been too harsh, however, it is the sincere wish of many residents to reduce the continual pressure of newspapers and other media "to give."

The problems (suggested by Mr. Roberts) of the Community Chest may have been solved by Mr. Roberts' statement and I quote "To my knowledge, three campaigns have been conducted since the commencement of the chest drive, namely Christmas Seal, Muscular Dystrophy, and the Mothers' March."

According to newspaper reports, all three campaigns have been unsuccessful successes, so it is difficult to understand how we have "three" other campaigns in the city which, local fund successes appear to be marked by limited campaigns.

Yours very truly,
C. G. (BUD) MECKLING,
P. Eng.

NEWS ANALYSIS

Poor Formosans Now Ignored

By PHILIP DEANE,
Foreign Affairs Analyst

The saddest part about recognizing Peking is that the Formosans are ignored. They are now ruled by a band of outlanders who came over with Chiang Kai-shek from the mainland. In 1945, when the mainland Chinese took Formosa from Japan, they looted it utterly. The island has since been made very prosperous with U.S. help, but its inhabitants do not have self-government.

If they were asked, they might vote and probably would vote for independence and self-government. But no one is asking them. Chiang Kai-shek would not agree to such a referendum because it would probably result in his being expelled. Peking wouldn't hear of such a referendum. Peking sees itself as the legitimate government of China and the rightful owner of all territories recognized as Chinese. Formosa was awarded to China after Japan's defeat.

The best solution morally would be for everyone to recognize Peking as being the rightful government of China while allowing the Formosans, who do not consider themselves Chinese, to be an independent state, governed by its own people and not by Chiang or Mao. But it seems as though the price for getting China back into the world community will be to let the Communist Chinese have Formosa. (Either this will be done by agreement or it might be done by having some Chiang Kai-shek general sell the island to Mao.)

The objection of the Americans to letting Mao take Formosa is not that the Formosans should have the right of self-determination; the Americans have tried to preserve a realm for Chiang Kai-shek. All the nations which, for years, have accepted the fiction that Chiang and Formosa represent China, have simply re-inforced China's claim to Formosa. It is too late now to advance a "two chinas" policy.

Those who advocate the recognition of Peking are not deterred by the thought that Formosa might want independence. They say that if we have ignored the national wishes of the Formosans all these years for the sake of Chiang Kai-shek, we cannot refuse to continue ignoring them when Mao will replace Chiang at the UN. Mao would never accept a deal that would give him less than was conceded to Chiang.

Formosa has served for so long as an American base that Peking will not feel safe so long as Chinese Communist troops do not control the island. In Mao's view, this would be the only ironclad guarantee that the Americans would not use Formosa. Perhaps strategic considerations are secondary in Peking's view to considerations of national pride and ideological expansionism. Peking will not agree to having recognized Chinese national territory diminished, nor pass up the opportunity of extending the realm of Maoism. The poor Formosans, a charming people, are victims of fate.

Pulp And Paper Industry Healthier

TORONTO (CP). — After three years of sagging production and earnings, the Canadian pulp and paper industry is showing signs of regaining its health.

A recent economic survey estimates a Canadian newsprint production this year at 8,400,000 tons, the highest since 1966 and about 86 per cent of capacity.

In 1968 mills operated at 83 per cent capacity as the gap between increased facilities and world demand widened.

The trouble began in the middle 1960s when long-term forecasts indicated Canadian mills should increase their capacity substantially to meet the rapidly-expanding United States demand. The U.S. takes about 75 per cent of all Canadian newsprint and more than 10 per cent of all wood pulp production.

Since 1965 Canadian wood pulp capacity has increased by about 1,000,000 tons annually, to 20,900,000 tons this year, and its newsprint capacity by an average 375,000 tons annually, to 9,800,000 tons in 1969.

FORECAST WAS WRONG

But the expected increase in demand, particularly in the U.S., did not develop, partly because of widespread newspaper strikes and partly because of an even faster increase in U.S. production capacity.

American newsprint consumption increased by only about 100,000 tons each year, to 9,300,000 tons last year instead of the 300,000-ton annual increase expected.

The capital expense of increasing capacity, coupled with the waste of idle equipment in paper company profits.

Nearly all earnings were down in 1967. They dipped again in the first half of 1968.

But by the last quarter things were looking brighter, and recently one Canadian investment house recommended some paper company stocks as a worthwhile investment.

Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd., one of the first major companies to report full 1968 results, showed earnings of $11,028,000, 11 per cent lower than 1967's $12,452,000 and lowest since 1958.

SALES SET RECORD

But sales were a record $255,588,000, thanks partly to subsidiaries acquired during the year. And last quarter earnings were up nearly $1,000,000 from the comparable 1967 period.

The story is even cheerier for Domtar Ltd., which earned $10,800,000 last year compared with $9,100,000 in 1967.

There are several reasons for 1969's optimistic outlook. But basically, Canadian companies which are slowing their own expansion, believe that American production expansion has reached its short-term peak.

At the same time world newsprint demand is expected to increase by about 1,000,000 tons from 1968, and U.S. demand by about 3.5 per cent or 300,000 tons. Canada supplies about 40 per cent of the world newsprint market.

As a hedge, some large Canadian companies have already bought control of new mills in the southern U.S. so that profit from these operations can be added to their earnings.

CANADA'S STORY

French Leader Doubted Racial Unity Possible

By BOB BOWMAN

In February, 1965, the Parliament of Canada was meeting at Quebec for the last time. In the autumn it would move to its new building in Ottawa. It was a memorable session because its most important business was to decide whether or not to accept the terms of Confederation that had been hammered out in October.

The debate began on Feb. 6 in the Legislative Council and the measure was passed on February 20 by a vote of 45-15. It looked as though the bill was going to have easy sailing when it went to the Legislative Assembly, but opposition was more difficult than expected. A number of French-speaking Canadians felt that their language and customs might be submerged in a larger Canada, but George Etienne Cartier managed to quell their fears. However, the debate continued until March 10 when the measure was approved by a majority of 91-53. Canada was committed to Confederation. Now it was a matter of waiting for decisions from New Brunswick,

Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, and Newfoundland.

Cartier expressed some remarkable views on the unity of French and English-speaking Canadians. He said "The idea of unity of races is Utopian. It is impossible. Distinctions of this kind will always exist. Dissimilarity, in fact, appears to be the order of the physical world and of the moral world, as well as in the political world."

Then he went on to say that Confederation would be successful despite the fact that Upper Canada was British and Protestant, Lower Canada was French and Roman Catholic, while the Lower provinces (meaning the Atlantic provinces) were mixed.

Britain, he said, was a good example. It was a federation of English, Scottish, Irish, and Welsh, and they had worked together to build a great empire. "The people of Canada would be of different races, not for the purpose of warring against each other, but in order to compete and emulate for the general welfare."

with Vic Graves of Nelson as caller. Refreshments will be provided and everyone welcome.

Sheila and Alex McClelland left Saturday for a short vacation at Nelson and Spokane, B.C. and John Kaushakis are leaving Wednesday for a month's vacation at Glendale, Calif. and Petersburg, Florida, and fellow dancers wish these two couples bon voyage.

The Kelowna Wagon Wheelers Square Dance club held a surprise house warming party Friday night at Fern and Ron McKenzies and an enjoyable evening was had by all.

(Continued from last week) The informed square dancer, however, knows there is much more to dancing than simply going to and fro without regard to speed or rhythm. The combination of proper speed, rhythmic pattern and movement can produce a most satisfying result. This might be termed "smooth square dancing". Smooth dancing is a result of a team-like relationship between the caller and the dancer as well as his leadership practiced by the caller. Both the caller and the dancer have certain responsibilities that must be carried out in order to insure smoothness in square dancing.

The following is a list of helpful hints that may be of assistance in dancing more smoothly.

1. DON'T RUSH. As explained above, expect a lead which may vary depending on the sequence of figures and the number of words that the caller has to say in directing the figure. Always complete the figure you are doing before you go on to the next. If the dancer does "goof" the figure and yet does not have enough time for its completion, it is the caller and not the dancer who is at fault.

2. DO THE FIGURE PROPERLY. Smooth dancing depends on the dancers properly executing the figure. Each figure has a starting place and an ending place. It is important that you take enough time to complete the figure called. Don't take short cuts. It is important that you do not take too much time to complete the figure. Don't put in extra "fancy twirls" etc. Such twirls and extra turns require more time than if the figure is done correctly.

Till next week Happy Square Dancing.

Discrimination Move Alleged

TORONTO (CP) — Working women in Ontario who feel they are discriminated against in wages and hours of work no longer have to make a signed complaint. The equal pay provision in the Ontario department of labor has been moved from the human rights section to the employment standards section of the department.

Mrs. L. R. Betcherman, director of the Women's Bureau, said under the old section "the employer knew and often fired her," if a woman signed the complaint.

"A woman now just has to telephone and say she thinks she is receiving less money than men for the same work in the same firm, and the matter will be investigated," she said.

Another result of the equal pay provision is that a violation may be discovered in a routine visit without anyone having to complain.

Annual Meeting Of St. Margaret's

The president's report showed 1968 had been a successful year in all ways. Discussion followed on matters pertaining to the church and guild.

A social period followed the meeting during which the hostess, Mrs. Crowder served refreshments.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Sid Land and any newcomers will be welcomed.

ANN LANDERS

A Little Learning Is A Dangerous Thing

Dear Ann Landers: I am a pre-med student who would like to straighten you out. I refer to your answer to the distraught college kid who wrote to you, all untight about taking LSD because he had heard it might cause his unborn children to be deformed.

Since you reached for Nobel Prize winner Dr. Joshua Lederberg to help you answer, one would think you got the straight goods but between the two of you you goofed.

A simple, inexpensive chromosome test can be performed by blood sample in the genetic counseling department of any large hospital, preferably a teaching-medical centre. A gross test, one which will reveal any breakage or mutants, can be done almost anywhere a high-powered microscope is available. Tell it like it is, Ann.

—PRE-MED STUDENT

Dear Pre-Med: I turned your letter over to Dr. John P. Merrill, Associate Professor of Harvard Medical School. He replied: "The pre-med student is wrong. The chromosome test requires something more than a high-powered microscope. The cells taken from a blood sample must be grown in culture, usually stimulated to divide, so one can see the chromosomes break up. Under these circumstances one might be able to tell something about the effects of LSD. There are, of course, other drugs which could produce this effect but in any case, something more is required than simply looking at cells under a microscope."

I'll pass on your apologies to Dr. Lederberg, Son.

Dear Ann Landers: Since almost every one reads your column, I know of no better way to get the word to countless inconsiderate, selfish, scheming sons and daughters who leave their aged parents to the mercy of neighbors. I am so sick of shouldering responsibilities that are not mine I could scream. When Papa dies, Mama is urged to sell the big house and move into an apartment. But the kids make sure the apartment is as far from them as possible. They insist she wants to be "independent". The truth is, they don't want to be bothered with her. So Mama bothers the neighbors.

I work downtown and come home at night exhausted. Before I sit down to supper the phone rings. Will I run over to the drugstore and get some medicine? The delivery boy is sick and she hates to call her son Jake because he lives on the other side of town. Ten minutes later, another call. Would I mind getting a get well card and a curtain rod during my lunch hour? At midnight, I get another call from Mr. J. (age 88). He fell in the bathroom and thinks he broke something. He can't remember his doctor's telephone number. Will I call him? He doesn't want to call his daughter because he doesn't want to bother her. (It's all right to bother ME, however.)

It's hard to say no to these old people, but I resent being in this spot. Any suggestions?—MRS. SOTTIE

ALJE REPORTS

How Geese Hang About

By ALJE KAMMINGA

If you can accept the statement fish travel in schools, then Bill Bero is the kind of guy you might like to chew the fat with.

Bill is the outdoors expert of King Features-Syndicate. On occasion, his work has appeared in the Courier under the heading Fur, Fin and Campfire.

Usually he concerns himself with helpful hints for the outdoorsman but now and then he slips in generally useless facts of nature. One of his recent contributions gave us the information frogs can sing under water because they normally sing with their nostrils and mouths closed.

Other valuable information includes: reindeer are known as the camels of the north, while sharks are the largest fish in the world and the blue whale is the world's largest mammal, growing to 100 feet in length.

Now Bill has turned his attention to terms of ventry. For the uninitiated, terms of ventry are words from the literature of various hunting and fishing journals. They describe the groupings of animals, birds and fish.

Without further comment, here is a sampling of those he has gathered: geese travel in faggles, badgers hang around in cotes, nightingales are normally seen together as a watch and doves, quite naturally, travel in flights. For those who own cats it might be interesting to know more than one constitutes a clowder.

There are also rafts of ducks, a whiteness of swans, a pod of whales and, shudder at the thought, a company of widgeon. If you're like me and don't know what widgeon are, at least comforting to know they travel in companies.

Here's one to stagger the mind. If you have two turtles they might be called a duet, correct? Well, if you have three, four or a dozen you would still call them a duet.

Try these on for size: a shrewdness of apes, a baron of mules, a sounder of swine and a wisp of snipe.

For the hunters, there's a sord of mallards, a brood of grouse, a covey of partridge and a down of hares. Rounding out the list are these gems: fall of woodcocks, desert of lapwings, covert of coots, pride of lions, shoal of porpoises, scult of foxes, gang of elk, muster of peacocks, skein of geese, congregation of rooks, kit of pigeons, trip of hares, exaltation of larks, siege of herons, building of rooks, unkindness of ravens, stand of plovers, pack of wolves, sleuth of bears, labour of moles, plump of ducks, spring of teal, wing of plovers and a drooping of sheldrakes.

The weather may be less than ideal but swimming is still a main topic of conversation these days. Dr. D. A. Clarke, among other things the president of the Kelowna Competitive Swim Club, stopped me on the street Tuesday to say the club is planning to hire a full-time swimming coach for the summer months.

The idea was first tried last year, and, if you choose to ignore the costs, extremely successful.

Dr. Clarke had these ideas about full-time coach:

The coach would spend between four and five hours a day during May and June preparing training programs and gathering statistics. School gymnasiums could be used for dryland training and conditioning and motels with heated pools could be approached for use of these pools after school hours.

In July and August, a program could be set up so that each age group would train at different times. This would enable them to get in more training sessions each day. This idea would allow the coach to concentrate on six or 10 swimmers in the same age group rather than 30 or 40 swimmers in different age groups. The same idea would enable the coach to concentrate on strokes as he would be spending all her time during the day on competitive swimming.

Dr. Clarke suggested Sue France, who did such an admirable job last year, be retained as the coach.

"A program of this nature, with a full time coach, takes a few years to become perfect," Dr. Clarke said. "But in the end the years of experiment will be well worth the trouble."

Remember when... Maurice (Rocket) Richard, out of hockey action for three months after suffering a cut tendon, returned to the Montreal Canadiens lineup 11 years ago to night—in 1958. He scored two goals as the Canadiens defeated Boston Bruins 4-0 at Montreal.

Opposition Errors Project Miller Into Curling Lead

NORTH BATTLEFORD (CP) — Bob Miller of Shellbrook won two close games Wednesday, when opposing skips failed to make their last shots, enabling Saskatchewan to take undisputed possession of first place in the Canadian schoolboy curling championship.

The Saskatchewan rink, with a 3-1 record in the 11-rink round-robin tournament, topped Prince Edward Island in a fifth-round game and stole three points in the 10th end to nip Alberta in the sixth round.

Tied for second place after six rounds were Ontario skip George Cox of Renfrew and Terry Norman of Moncton, N.B., with 42 records. John Anderson of Sedgewick, Alta., is 3-2 and Bill Henry of Winnipeg, Manitoba's entry, holds fifth place with a 3-3 record.

Behind the top five rinks were Ron Lehotovara of Fort William, representing Northern Ontario, Newfoundland skip Doug Ryan of St. John's, Robert Stewart of Charlottetown, and British Columbia's entry, Grant MacDonald of Whitehorse, all with 2-3 records.

Quebec's Claude Brouillette of Pointe Claire is 2-4 and John Brady of Bridgewater, N.S., is 1-4.

In the seventh round today, it was Manitoba against Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island against Northern Ontario, and against Saskatchewan, Alberta against Nova Scotia and British Columbia against New Brunswick.

In the fifth round, Ontario defeated British Columbia 9-6, Quebec edged New Brunswick 11-9, Saskatchewan nipped Prince Edward Island 7-6, Alberta beat Nova Scotia 8-5 and Manitoba downed Northern Ontario 14-10. Newfoundland had the bye.

Sixth-round action saw Saskatchewan edge Alberta 11-9, New Brunswick top Northern Ontario 9-4, British Columbia beat Manitoba 14-6 in an extra end, Newfoundland upset Ontario, and Prince Edward Island whip Quebec 13-4. The bye went to Nova Scotia.

A partisan Saskatchewan crowd watched Miller beat Stewart in the fifth round when the Prince Edward Island skip attempted to come around a guard with his last shot. But Stewart was wide and Miller stole a single point for the win.

Alberta appeared easy winners in the sixth round when they counted four points in the first end, with the help of Saskatchewan misses, and picked up another point in the second for a 5-0 margin.

Anderson held a 9-5 lead after seven ends, but Miller counted two in the eighth, one in the ninth and three in the 10th for his hard-fought victory.

The Alberta skip, who had the last shot, attempted to draw down the eight-foot circle, but was heavy and slipped to the back of the house.

LARGEST NUGGET The largest silver nugget ever recorded was one of 2,750 pounds.

THE BOSTON BRUINS

Have relied heavily on the likes of Phil Esposito, Bobby Orr and Ken Hodge to carry them into first place in the National Hockey League.

Almost overlooked in Boston's amazing season is Ted Green, the veteran defenseman. He'll probably get a lot more consideration when the NHL writers get around to selecting the All-Star team. Even Green couldn't help the slumping Bruins Wednesday, however, as they dropped their third decision in a row.

Penguins Upset Bruins With Daley Leading Way

By SCOTT BUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Goaltender Joe Daley of Pittsburgh Penguins received exactly what he wanted for his birthday, his first National Hockey League shutout.

Daley, 26 years old today, picked up the shutout Wednesday night as the Penguins upset Boston Bruins 3-0.

The Bruins presented the shutout reluctantly to Daley, who made 41 saves—15 in the first period and 14 in the second. It was the first shutout of the season for Pittsburgh, which has employed a veteran netminder Les Binkley in most games.

Despite the loss, the Bruins remained deadlocked with Montreal Canadiens for first place in the Eastern Division. The Canadiens were trounced 5-1 by Toronto Maple Leafs Wednesday night.

Meanwhile, Oakland Seals downed Chicago Black Hawks 5-2, Minnesota North Stars outlasted Los Angeles Kings 7-4 and Detroit Red Wings held New York Rangers to a 1-1 tie.

Daley's task was made easier by the absence of centre Phil Esposito from the Boston lineup. Esposito, the NHL's leading scorer, sat out the first game of a two-game suspension given for pushing and hitting referee Bob Sloan during a game earlier this month.

A crowd of 3,189 at Pittsburgh saw Keith McCreary score two goals for the Penguins and Lou Angotti one.

Great goaltending by Bruce Gamble helped the Maple Leafs end Montreal's unbeaten streak at seven games before 16,485 Maple Leaf Gardens patrons. Gamble made 40 saves in what he described as his best game this season. Starting goaltender Gump Worsley of Montreal was taken to hospital for observation after suffering a head injury in the first period.

Worsley fell heavily after Montreal defenceman Jacques Laperriere checked team-mate Serge Savard and Toronto forward Bob Pulford into the goal area. Rogation Vachon replaced Worsley and gave up all the Toronto goals.

Scoring for the Maple Leafs were Norm Ullman, Dave Keon, Bill Sutherland, Ron Ellis and Paul Henderson. Bobby Rousseau scored for Montreal at 11:42 of the final period to ruin Gamble's shutout.

Rookies Brian Perry and Norm Ferguson paced the Seals to victory before 10,009 at Oakland. Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita replied for Chicago.

The victory was the fourth this season for Oakland in five games against the Hawks. It also was their 13th against Eastern Division opposition. Perry scored once in each period while Ferguson tallied in the first and third.

Ab McDonald scored two goals and assisted on another to guide St. Louis to its win and clinch a playoff spot for the Blues in the Western Division. First-place St. Louis holds a 23-point lead over runner-up Oakland.

Jim Roberts had the other St. Louis goal and Andre Lacroix tallied for Philadelphia before a St. Louis gathering of 15,072.

Phil Goyette of New York and Dean Prentice of Detroit exchanged second-period goals as the third-place Rangers stayed one point ahead of Detroit in the Eastern Division.

A turnout of 17,250 at New York watched Goyette score on a pass from Reg Fleming at 16:05. Prentice tied the score at 18:06, with newcomer Wayne Connelly setting up the goal.

Third Spot New Target For Kelowna Buckaroos

With four games remaining, Kelowna Buckaroos trail third-place Vernon Essos by four points in the B.C. Junior Hockey League standings.

And as the 1968-69 season draws rapidly to a close, third spot is the highest objective the Bucks can shoot for. They trail second-place Victoria by eight points and, with a combination of four Kelowna victories and five Victoria losses, could possibly move into a second-place tie with the Cougars.

But the coast team would still take second place because they have a better record than the Buckaroos in almost every conceivable category.

Buckaroos are in Penticton Friday and host the Kamloops Rockets at the Memorial Arena Saturday. On March 1 they host New Westminster Royals and on March 2, the Victoria Cougars.

In individual statistics, Kelowna's Pat McMahon is in eighth spot among the league's leading scorers. He has 21 goals and 31 assists for 52 points, one more than ninth place Gerry Vachon of Vernon. Larry Leonarduzzi continues to lead in penalty minutes with 161. Kelowna leads all teams with 719 minutes, 23 more than the B.C. Junior Hockey League record set last year by the New Westminster Royals.

Why the sudden excitement over "pop art"? For years, we've been providing a beautiful mural, suitable for refrigerating, with every bottle of beer. (Why, even our cap goes "pop".) But we'll be honest about it. The label's just a front. The real masterpiece is inside the bottle. And it's traditional. Beer brewed slowly and naturally in the good old-fashioned way. Will Nothing Go Right For Vancouver Bid...

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver hockey fans are in for a disappointment if they expect that the federal Combines Investigation Act will force an early National Hockey League franchise here, a Vancouver economic consultant says.

"For the last three years, action under the Combines Investigation Act has been held out as a possible means of getting the NHL to expand into Vancouver," Dr. James A. Sherbaniuk wrote in a recent article.

The act, in its present form, does not apply to professional sport, he said. "And even if it were to be amended appropriately the results would not improve Vancouver's NHL prospects for some time."

Ron Basford, consumer affairs minister, mentioned the possibility of eventually using the act against the NHL in Parliament earlier this session. In February, 1966, he had introduced a private member's bill to amend the act to include professional sport, but it died after first reading.

And last May he suggested that a parliamentary committee be established to investigate the NHL and organized hockey in general.

As the act now is worded, the restrictive activities prohibited relate, with certain exceptions, to the production and distribution of articles or commodities, with the emphasis on goods rather than services.

Dr. Sherbaniuk says only a few services—storage, transportation and rental of goods and the price of insurance on property or persons—are specifically outlined in the act.

"Restrictive arrangements among members of a profession which call for the performance of services alone have been considered to be beyond the prohibitions of the legislation. The above category... would include hockey."

In the article, Dr. Sherbaniuk said Mr. Basford has indicated that any amendments in the act will have to wait until the Economic Council of Canada completes its study—begun in 1967—into combines problems.

Its report, which could possibly recommend including sport under the combines act, is not expected until May or June. But this would be only "the first step in a very time-consuming procedure," Dr. Sherbaniuk predicts.

Amendments would have to be drafted, debated in Parliament and finally made law.

MIGHT NEED CHANGE

"It is unlikely, however, that this move alone... will scare the NHL into loosening its grip on new franchises."

Experience indicates that the league governors are not easily intimidated, he said.

"If they should still refuse any overtures for expansion, it might prove necessary for the combines branch to conduct an inquiry and to lay a formal charge against the NHL based on the new amendments."

"Allowing time for the preparation of the case, the trial, possible appeals—perhaps, to the Supreme Court of Canada—the whole procedure, from the time of the economic council's recommendations to the ultimate court decision, could easily take two or three years."

"We could be well into the 1972 hockey season or beyond before the efficacy of these proposed amendments is known."

Young Swingers In Golf Looking For More Money

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Golf's younger brigade takes another swing at the big money with the opening today of the $100,000 Tucson golf tournament.

Jack Ewing, Larry Ziegler, Jerry Abbott and Jim Wiechers were among those who figured prominently in the Phoenix Open last week and there are a host of others in the 144 player field to challenge the stars.

Still, most of the interest here centres on Gene Littler, the tournament winner at Phoenix with 263 and leading money winner on the tour this year with $48,028 and defending champion George Knudson of Toronto.

A year ago, Knudson won both at Phoenix and Tucson, duplicating Littler's feat of 1959.

They play over the 7,305-yard Tucson National Golf Club course, a par 36-36-72 layout.

At Phoenix, Ewing, 24, of Bakersfield, Calif., finished with 287, one stroke below the previous tournament record, but had to be content with a tie for fifth place and $3,633. Ziegler, 29, of Bonne Terre, Mo., had a 269. Abbott, 27, Boca Raton, Fla., and Wiechers, 24, of Atherton, Calif., each finished 270.

The National course measures only 1,000 yards longer than the one in Phoenix. New Zealand's Bob Charles holds the tournament record for the National at 271 in 1965. Knudson carded a 273 a year ago.

Jack's Brilliance Not Enough As Spurs Bombard San Diego

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Spurs scored four goals in the third period to overcome an amazing performance by San Diego goalie Jack McCartan and defeat Gulls 6-4 Wednesday night in a Western Hockey League game.

The Spurs, entrenched in the WHL cellar, broke out late in the final period and bombarded the San Diego net.

McCartan, a former player with the U.S. Olympic hockey team, had a phenomenal 62 saves for the night. Rocky Farr handled 17 for Spurs.

Fred Hills scored twice for San Diego and singles came from Warren Hynes and Willie O'Ree. Gulls led 1-0 after the first period and O'Ree's marker.

Then Spurs' John Rodger and Wilf Martin counted in the second for the 2-2 tie. Gulls took the lead on Hills' second marker at 7:30 of the final session before 3,136 fans.

Gordie Vejprava replied for Spurs and after Hynes' goal Denver exploded with markers from Bob Cunningham, Billy Carter and Martin's second, which ended scoring at 17:26.

Spurs remained in the cellar but moved up to 40 points. Portland Buckaroos lead with 69. Vancouver Canucks have 65. Gulls, 61. Seattle Totems 56 and Phoenix Roadrunners 47.

McLain Named Year's Athlete

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Detroit Tiger pitcher Denny McLain was named Pro Athlete of 1968 on the second annual Academy of Professional Sports Awards program Wednesday night.

McLain, also the American League baseball award winner, and winners in five other major sports were picked in a poll of leading sports writers and sportscasters, conducted by an accounting firm. The results were announced at a National Broadcasting Co. network program.

Other winners were:

- Bob Gibson, St. Louis Cardinals, National League, baseball.
- Billy Casper, golf.
- Bobby Hull, Chicago Black Hawks, hockey.
- Wesley Unseld, Baltimore Bullets, basketball.
- Earl Morrill, Baltimore Colts, National Football League.
- Joe Namath, New York Jets, American Football League.
- Angel Cordero Jr., horse racing.

Canadian Ski Championships Held At Whistler Mountain

GARIBALDI, B.C. (CP) — Whistler Mountain, Canada's nomination for the 1976 Olympics, will be the site of the Canadian Alpine ski championships starting Friday.

A field of about 90 skiers from across Canada will compete at Whistler, 75 miles north of Vancouver on the fringe of Garibaldi provincial park.

Members of Canada's national ski team will return from Europe to compete in the event which ends Sunday.

With most countries staging their national championships the same weekend, few top European and United States skiers are expected at Whistler. The week devoted to national meets enables skiers to compete in their own country, without jeopardizing international point standings which count for World Cup placement.

3 SEASONS OLD

Whistler is a relatively new ski resort, opened three seasons ago and managed by Jack Bright, formerly of Mont Tremblant, Que.

Its lifts serve a vertical drop of 4,280 feet, longest in North America. The base is at 2,140 feet, the top at 6,420.

The men's and women's downhill events will be held Wednesday. The men's race will be over a 16,000-foot course with a vertical drop of 3,500 feet. The women will race down a 2,400-foot vertical drop which extends along a 10,000-foot course.

Saturday's giant slalom is a compromise between the downhill and slalom. It demands a series of high-speed turns over a course controlled by more widely-spaced gates. At Whistler, the course will be 8,000 feet long and the drop 2,400 feet—for both men and women.

First Cracks Appearing In Boycott By Players

NEW YORK (AP) — The major league baseball players' boycott of spring training show some signs of cracking, but not enough to keep their representatives from rejecting another pension offer from club owners.

Name players such as Pat Jarvis, Tom Seaver, Jerry Grote and George Scott said Wednesday they would report to spring training.

And owner Francis Dale of Cincinnati Reds says that's just the beginning.

"The real test of the players hasn't come yet," Dale said in Cincinnati. "I can tell you there are a lot of players signed and not ready to go. We really haven't tested Marvin Miller's control of his men."

That brought a response from Miller, executive director of the Major League Players' Association.

"This proves it is all a stalling tactic to try to break the association wide open," Miller said in New York.

Earlier in the day player representatives had overwhelmingly turned down the latest proposal by owners to increase the pension $1,200,000 to $5,300,000.

The players had rejected a previous $1,000,000 increase and Dick Moss, counsel for the association, said player representatives did not think the new offer significant enough to submit to the membership.

The Association is asking for a $6,500,000 pension package.

Moss also said a few players were expected to report to spring training, but reaffirmed the association belief that the majority of players would not sign contracts or report until the dispute is settled.

But among those who were signed today was Jarvis, Atlanta Braves' top pitcher last season with a 16-12 record.

Seaver, an all-star with New York Mets last year, said he had not signed and would not report today at St. Petersburg, Fla.

"I will play this season whether the dispute is settled or not," he added, however.

Grote, the Mets' all-star catcher, and team-mates Nolan Ryan and Danny Fisiella, both pitchers, also said they would report.

Scott, Boston Red Sox' infielder, was quoted in a copyrighted story in the Boston Traveler as saying he planned to report on schedule next Wednesday.

John Bateman and Ron Brand, catchers with Montreal Expos, and team-mate Bob Bailey reported Wednesday.

Ken Harrelson, Boston slugger who led the American League in runs batted in last season, earlier announced his intention to report, having signed a contract last summer. And veteran catcher Russ Nixon and veteran pitcher Dan Osinski reported earlier to the Chicago White Sox camp at Sarasota, Fla.

Europe Prepares To Guard Nixon

LONDON (AP) — Police of six nations are completing plans to protect President Nixon against organized demonstrators and individual fanatics and screwballs during his European tour.

In Britain, France, Belgium, Germany and Italy, security agents are charting routes, vantage points for potential assassins, assembly points for demonstrators and compiling lists of local "nuts" who might do something weird if they got the chance.

American secret service men are in London, Paris, Brussels, Bonn, West Berlin and Rome co-ordinating arrangements with local authorities.

Cmdr. John Lawlor of Scotland Yard, who dealt with the riots at the American Embassy last year, has sent a list of potential troublemakers, including Continental agitators, to all immigration officers.

The president will stay at Claridge's Hotel rather than the U.S. Embassy residence in Regent's Park because every British security officer knows every alcove and corner of the venerable establishment in Mayfair. Heads of state and government chiefs have stayed there for generations.

PLAN HOT TIME
Militant opponents of the Vietnam war have served notice they intend to give the president a hot time in London. Edward Davoren, secretary of the Revolutionary Student Federation, claims that 50 organizations have formed a Hot Reception for Nixon Committee. He promised 60,000 at one demonstration before the U.S. Embassy Monday, before Nixon's arrival.

London police will be out in force and the home office has issued special permission for American security officers attached to the president to carry guns.

Paris police are planning the same protection for Nixon that they gave President de Gaulle. That is considerable.

Police will line roads and streets, spaced 50 yards apart. Firemen and police will be stationed on rooftops. Plainclothesmen will mingle with the crowds. Traffic will be stopped on the presidential routes, and Nixon's motorcade will travel at high speed. Any unusual assembly will be promptly broken up.

Belgium home of the Northern Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Common Market, generally practices the European system of smothering the involved area with police.

Bonn and West Berlin present special problems in the light of their proximity to East Germany as well as the presence of energetic leftist students from many countries who attend West German universities.

West Berlin will have 13,000 uniformed police on standby, with possibly half on special duty. American troops and public safety officers will be mobilized as well.

But no trouble is expected from East Berlin. The Soviets have a habit of telling their satellite to cool it when such a personage as an American president is in town. Hotheads in West Berlin may be inspired by Communist propaganda but they won't have Kremlin support.

Rome is expecting some flurry of protest but only from maverick extreme leftists. The big Italian Communist party seems more pleased at Nixon's visit than against it.

Massive police forces are being assigned to the president's routes—from the airport to the Quirinal, to the Vatican, and to the American embassy—but they expect mostly an enthusiastic welcome from the Italians.

AROUND B.C. IN BRIEF

Conditional Agreement Made On Contract For 3,000 Plumbers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Conditional agreement has been reached on three issues for a new contract for 3,000 British Columbia plumbers—a one-year pact, a 7½-hour work day and issue of free tools for those who don't already receive them. Wages and benefits have not been settled.

'LOUSY SPELLERS'
VANCOUVER (CP) — Magistrate Lawrence Eckardt Wednesday fined book store operator Eric Judd $100 for possession of obscene material and West Coast News $500 for possession and distribution of obscene matter, two books which the magistrate said were "the work of morons—and lousy spellers at that."

CONVICTED OF RAPE
VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia Supreme Court jury Wednesday convicted Douglas Ronald Anderson, 33, no fixed address, of rape. The charge involved an attack on a 22-year-old woman in Stanley Park last Oct. 27. Anderson was remanded to Feb. 28 for sentencing.

LEAPED FROM CAR
VANCOUVER (CP) — A coroner's jury ruled Wednesday that Jean McCuaig, 47, leaped to her death from a moving car in an apparent attempt to escape the driver's erratic driving. She died last Saturday. The jury recommended amputee driver Ross McKenzie, 69, take another driving test.

COUNCIL TO PAY
VANCOUVER (CP) — City council agreed Wednesday to pick up the bill for $22,497 in wages, part of a $322,282 deficit run up by the Vancouver Festival Society in 1968. But council balked at paying $35,291 to out-of-town performers in the annual festival.

VICTIM NAMED
NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Police Wednesday identified the victim of a house fire here Tuesday night as Joseph Herdman Garner, 62. RCMP said the man's body was found in his bed in the bungalow.

THIEVES SELECTIVE
VANCOUVER (CP) — Thieves picked out quality clothing and left behind less expensive article Wednesday in a break in at a downtown men's store. Loot was valued at $10,000 to $15,000, said a store official. The thieves punched through a wall of the store.

INCREASE URGED
VICTORIA (CP) — A special forest service report to the British Columbia legislature recommends that wage rates for forest firefighters drafted by the B.C. Forest Service should be increased to $1.75 an hour from $1.25. It also recommended a daily living allowance of $4.50 for men not provided with room and board.

Ottawa Comes Under Fire For Carter Report Failure

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal government failure to implement more recommendations of the Carter report on taxation has come under fire from the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

The 225,000-member union also criticizes federal attempts to hold down inflation by reducing expenses when unemployment is "abnormally high."

In its annual brief to the federal government, the CNTU took swipes at foreign policy, housing and rate increases by the post office department.

On the subject of taxation, the brief says the Carter recommendations "would do at least more than the present system to give justice to the small and medium-wage earners."

Attacking the government decision to leave capital gains untaxable, the CNTU says "it seems socially immoral to tax a dollar earned by a worker's toil and hardship, yet allow a $1,000,000 won on the stock market to be exempt."

The CNTU failed "to understand how the federal government could have suppressed winter work" at a time when unemployment was "reaching alarming proportions."

The lack of "vigor and leadership in the economic policy of the government" is deplored and continuing inflation is called a "catastrophe to an immense number of families of workers and wage earners."

Establishment of a price arbitration system under which producers would be required to justify price increases is suggested as a means of creating price stability. The minimum wage should be raised to $2.

In a section devoted to foreign relations, the brief calls for greater independence from the United States and applauds the government's stated desire to review its role in NORAD and NATO.

It also calls for establishment of diplomatic relations with Communist China and official Canadian disapproval of U.S. intervention in Vietnam.

The brief suggests a study of the possibility of granting provinces a certain international status in fields exclusively theirs under the constitution.

As for Quebec's international role, it states that it should not affect diplomatic relations between Canada and the French-speaking countries of the world.

In labor and manpower, the provincial governments should be officially represented on international organizations such as the International Labor Organization.

The Hellyer report on housing is called "disappointing."

"It contains no proposals for solving the housing problems of the economically weak and even of citizens of average income; it encourages life-long indebtedness."

The post office department decision to raise rates would "promote increased monopolization of written information."

The brief condemns the "radicalism" and the "arrogance of the Trudeau government in this field," and claims the government has been the "accomplice of the great press magnates."

The CNTU brief also requests that workers "displaced by the application of the Kennedy Round tariff agreements" be helped by the government.

It says that after the automobile free trade pact was signed between Canada and the United States the federal government began paying displaced auto workers up to $75 a week. Similar help should be given workers who may be displaced in other fields as a result of the agreement, such as the textile industry.

The brief also attacks the government for not implementing a Canadian maritime policy, "which is one of the causes for the closing of the George T. Davis Shipyard at Lauzon, Que."

It asks the government to do "everything possible to prevent the closing of the Canadian Vickers shipyard in Montreal, scheduled for July."

California Sues Oil Companies

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — California is suing four oil firms and the federal government for $1,300,000,000 on charges that negligence caused the giant ocean oil slick that damaged beaches and killed sea life.

A $500,000,000 claim against the interior department was filed by Charles A. O'Brien, chief deputy attorney-general of California.

O'Brien said an $800,000,000 damage suit would be filed today against Union Oil Co., operator of the ruptured offshore well, and Texaco, Inc., Mobile Oil Co., and Gulf Oil Corp., Union's partners in the federal drilling lease.

O'Brien said the claim and the suit ask payment for damage to fish and wildlife and beach cleanup plus general damages including damage to tourist potential.

Opening lead—nine of hearts.

The problem of entries can plague declarer in the play of many hands. Inadequate communication from one hand to the other may break a contract that could otherwise be made. It naturally follows that in hands where communication is important, declarer must do everything possible to create additional entries to the hand that needs them.

Take this deal where South is in seven clubs. On the surface it would seem that declarer needs a successful diamond finesse to make the contract. However, further study reveals that a diamond finesse may not be necessary if the East-West cards are favorably divided.

Declarer consequently plans from the start to exhaust other possibilities before staking the outcome of the hand on a diamond finesse.

He starts by winning the heart lead with the jack, being careful to drop his ten on it. He then ruffs a low spade high. The deuce of clubs to the eight is followed by another spade ruff high. After leading the five of clubs to the nine, declarer ruffs the third round of spades.

The purpose of these ruffs is to try to drop the ace of spades. Felling the ace on the first, second or third spade lead would render it unnecessary to risk a diamond finesse.

The ace not having appeared, declarer cashes the ace of hearts, both opponents following suit, and leads the queen to dummy's king. He next trumps the ten of spades, finally felling the ace.

The deuce of hearts, so carefully preserved from the start, provides an entry to dummy's six, and the queen of diamonds is then discarded on the king of spades.

Note that the diamond finesse is held in reserve in case the spades misbehave, and note also that dropping the ten of hearts on the jack is absolutely essential to creating an extra entry to dummy.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

FOR TOMORROW

While planetary influences for Friday will continue to be generous where personal relationships are concerned, the generosity is limited to close friends and business associates. Dealings with both should be most harmonious, but a minor aspect warns against taking new acquaintances at face value. Be careful of those who gush, flatter and overwhelm with their "friendly" advances.

FOR THE BIRTHDAY

If tomorrow is your birthday, your horoscope indicates that, as of this week, you entered an excellent planetary cycle where both job and monetary interests are concerned. This cycle will last until April 15th, so make the most of the next three months with the expectation of a couple of good years in mid-July and early August.

A child born on this day will be endowed with a fine mind and will achieve lofty goals, but will have to curb a tendency toward excessive gambling.

Furthering material aims. Be cautious in fiscal matters in May and June; also between mid-October and mid-December, or you could offset gains made previously. These will be months in which it will be important to avoid speculation and undue extravagance.

Personal interests will be governed by beneficent aspects for most of the 12 months ahead, so you should enjoy extremely happy domestic and social relationships. If single, you are in a fine year where romance and/or marriage are concerned, with most propitious weeks occurring in early April, late August, late October and late December. Best periods for travel: The weeks between early June and mid-September, late October and late December.

One Bureaucratic Hazard Being Probed By Committee

OTTAWA (CP) — Who has the power to write cabinet orders and government regulations? Is this power abused by cabinet ministers and public servants? Do some orders and regulations conflict with acts of Parliament and the Bill of Rights?

A special 12-member Commons committee headed by Mark MacGuigan, Liberal MP for Windsor-Walkerville and a professor of law, has been established to investigate these and related matters.

Mr. MacGuigan said in an interview Tuesday that Prime Minister Trudeau was the main driving force behind formation of the committee. Mr. Trudeau has more than once warned of the potential danger of the regulation-making authority of a growing bureaucracy.

Mr. MacGuigan said objective of the committee's hearings, to which ministers and public servants will be summoned to testify, is a permanent Commons scrutiny committee to oversee — and challenge if necessary — all government orders and regulations.

He said it is even possible that a system will be established comparable to that in the United States whereby public hearings would have to be held before regulations based on legislation approved by Parliament could be drafted and promulgated.

A permanent committee might become known as an ombudsman committee to make sure that all regulations made by government are not contrary to the intent of the law as passed by Parliament, he said. Two other prime movers behind the current committee investigation are Donald Macdonald, government House leader, and Gerald Baldwin, Conservative House leader.

Committee counsel have already been appointed — at $200 a day each. They are Dr. Gilles Pepin, dean of the civil law faculty at the University of Ottawa and a brother of Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, and lawyer John Morden of Toronto, a Conservative who campaigned against Mr. Macdonald in the last election.

Mr. MacGuigan said the committee will start calling witnesses in about a month. It was hoped all evidence would be collected before the end of June and that the committee could spend the summer drafting a report for submission to the next session of Parliament.

There are indications that Parliament will simply adjourn in June or July and not prorogue. This device would enable Commons committees to function until the fall when the session would be prorogued and a new one started a day or two later.

Mr. MacGuigan said there are about 30 government departments and about 50 government agencies which have power to make regulations.

Committee counsel would prepare questionnaires to be sent to all departments and agencies concerning their regulation-making powers. Because of time, spokesmen for only some of these departments and agencies would be called as witnesses.

French Speaking Nations Plan Co-Operation Link

NIAMEY, Niger (CP) — An agency to provide greater cultural and educational co-operation is to be established by a group of countries, including Canada, that totally or partially use the French language.

The decision to form such an agency was reached Wednesday at an international meeting here of 25 such countries, most of them African.

The meeting winds up today. Selected as secretary of a temporary executive of the agency is Jean-Marc Leger, 41-year-old journalist with the influential Montreal French-language daily Le Devoir.

Mr. Leger, attending the meeting as an observer, has toured Africa as a newspaper man and as secretary of an association of totally or partially French-language universities in the world.

State Secretary Gerard Pelletier, head of the Canadian delegation, said it has no reservations about Mr. Leger, even if some consider him to be an ardent defender of independence for Quebec.

QUALIFIED FOR POST

Mr. Leger was qualified to fill the post, Mr. Pelletier said. A native of Montreal and also a lawyer, Mr. Leger is a founder and former president of the International Association of French-Language Journalists.

He also founded the Canadian Union of French-Language Journalists.

After joining the Montreal bar, he decided to opt for journalism and specialized in foreign political writing for Montreal La Presse, largest French language daily in North America.

He worked for La Presse for five years until 1955, then joined Le Devoir. He holds a diploma in political science from a French university and has a master's degree in history.

Mr. Leger is to help draft a charter for the agency and regulations covering its operations. A second international conference, scheduled for 1970, will be asked to approve the charter.

The agency's temporary executive is to have provisional headquarters in Paris.

Quebec and Canada both were invited to the conference and Quebec agreed to sit as part of the Canadian delegation providing its members were "well identified."

The Quebec government holds the view that the province has a right to attend international conferences on matters it considers strictly within provincial jurisdiction, such as education and culture.

Mr. Pelletier was accompanied by representatives of Ontario and New Brunswick. Marcel Masse, Quebec minister without portfolio attached to the education department, heads the Quebec delegation.

The conference suggested that President Diiori Hamani of Niger, who served as chairman, carry on continued consultations with the governments attending and with other countries that might be interested in the co-operative project.

Mr. Pelletier told reporters that the consultations should be carried out through the external affairs department in Ottawa. Mr. Masse said Quebec also should be consulted.
